THE COURSES HIGHLIGHTED NEED TO BE ADDED TO THE UNDERGRADUATE COURSE CATALOG TO ALIGN WITH THIS COURSE DESCRIPTION LINK:

Law, Crime and the Criminal Justice System (CCJ 2002) 3 credits

An introductory course that provides students with an understanding of law, crime, and the criminal justice system in America. This is a General Education course.

Crime and Everyday Life (CCJ 2034) 3 credits

This course is designed to help students develop a broader understanding of environmental influences on crime and criminal events. Students are introduced to topics of the realities of crime statistics and how they may appear skewed by media and political interpretation. In addition, students develop skills in crime mapping and how to view locations critically for crime management and potential crime prevention strategies. This includes students working in classroom groups to complete crime mapping sessions and evaluate simulated criminal complaint reports.

Special Topics (CCJ 2930) 1-3 credits

In-depth analysis of current and emerging issues in criminal justice (lower division).

Criminology (CCJ 3014) 3 credits

Prerequisite: CCJ 4700

A study of criminal and delinquent behavior theories within the context of several disciplines.

The Criminal Justice System (CCJ 3024) 3 credits

Comprehensive survey of the history, philosophy and organization of the American police, the courts and correctional institutions, including probation and parole. Study of crime, law and the administration of criminal justice.

Artificial Intelligence for Social Good (CCJ 3071) 3 credits

In this course, students learn about the social implications of artificial intelligence, data science and big data; strategies to ensure these systems are accountable to the communities and contexts they are meant to serve; and applied in ways the promote justice and equity.

Crime in the Schools (CCJ 3660) 3 credits

Analysis of the nature and causes of crime committed on secondary and postsecondary school campuses. Explores the role of drugs, weapons, gangs, and bullies in creating fear and disorder. Reviews legal issues, legislative actions, liability concerns, and previous strategies.

Victimology (CCJ 3666) 3 credits

The course provides an overview of the study of victims and the process, etiology and consequences of victimization. Special attention is paid to the types of victims, theories of victimization and the victim's treatment within the criminal justice system. (May be taken for credit in Women's Studies Program.)

Cooperative Education (CCJ 3949) 1-3 credits

To provide professional experience for criminal justice majors. Open only to Criminal Justice majors. Credits do not count toward graduation. Grading: S/U

Ethics and the Justice System (CCJ 4054) 3 credits

Course provides an introduction to theories in ethics and the exploration of a variety of ethical/moral issues that characterize and define the different facets of criminology and criminal justice policy and practice.

Restorative Community Justice (CCJ 4141) 3 credits

This course introduces students to the basic concepts of restorative community justice, which includes victims, offenders, and communities in a reparative response to criminal behavior. Offenders are held accountable, while victims and communities are enabled to participate in the justice process as key stakeholders.

Immigration and the Criminal Justice System (CCJ 4196) 3 credits

This course is designed to present an overview of the immigration consequences to non-citizens as a result of criminal activity. The course presents an in-depth study of immigration cases, the theories behind immigration law, including the consequences to an immigrant's status if they are convicted of a crime. The course examines the USSC landmark case Padilla v. Kentucky, examines immigration terms, defines and distinguishes what a conviction is for immigration purposes, and examines the main immigration consequences and major immigration crimes.

Drug Courts (CCJ 4293) 3 credits

This course provides an in-depth examination of the historical and contemporary use of drug courts in the United States. Using scholarly articles, book chapters, documentaries, guest speaker(s)/interviews and courtroom observations, the course reveals many levels of how drug courts are utilized. Critical thinking and discussion ability are required for the course.

RI: Drug Courts (CCJ 4293) 3 credits

This course provides an in-depth examination of the historical and contemporary use of drug courts in the United States. Using scholarly articles, book chapters, documentaries, guest speaker(s)/interviews and courtroom observations, the course reveals many levels of how drug courts are utilized. Critical thinking and discussion ability are required for the course. This course is research intensive (RI).

Death Penalty (CCJ 4361) 3 credits

This course is designed as an overview of death penalty litigation in America. The course presents an in-depth study of death penalty cases and the theories behind the death penalty. The course also explores death penalty sentencing including aggravating and mitigating circumstances. Methods of execution in the United States, their significance to the constitutionality of the death penalty and the potential future of the death penalty are covered.

A study of criminal justice management and practice as it applies to the police, courts, and corrections.

Gangs, Groups and Justice (CCJ 4508) 3 credits

This course is a critical examination of the history and development of gangs, including criminal justice system responses to gangs and gang-related behaviors. The course examines the relationship between gangs and other groups of offenders. In addition, the course examines the role of gangs in criminal behavior as well as the use of traditional theories of crime in the explanation of gang behavior.

Teen Technology Misuse (CCJ 4554) 3 credits

Twenty-first century teens have employed communications technology to mistreat, embarrass, harass, control, threaten or abuse others. This includes, but is not limited to, cyber bullying, sexting, the criminal use of Facebook, electronic dating violence, predation and stalking. Students learn of the sociological, criminological, developmental and practical implications of this problem and how it can be addressed.

Studying Violence (CCJ 4623) 3 credits

Course examines causes, patterns, results, and policies that deal with different types of criminal violence.

Serial Homicide (CCJ 4627) 3 credits

This course is designed to provide students with an in-depth examination of the killers among us. It focuses on the myths and stereotypes that have evolved from mass media and public efforts to find explanations for the relatively rare phenomenon of serial homicide.

Media and Crime (CCJ 4631) 3 credits

Students in this course learn how the criminal justice system is portrayed in television, movies, print, social media, radio and more. The finale to this course has students selecting a recent significant criminal justice event/case and presenting a comparison of how it was covered in two media outlets. This allows students to recognize media frames, claims makers and narratives.

Elders and the Criminal Justice System (CCJ 4632) 3 credits

This course utilizes an interdisciplinary approach to examining the many ways in which elders interface with the criminal justice system. Topics covered include the nature and extent of elderly crime, the criminal justice system's response to older offenders, elders as participants in criminal trials, elders as victims of crime and abuse, and legal issues for elderly populations. Particular attention is placed on assessing these topics from a policy perspective that incorporates concern for administrative, legal and ethical issues.

Drugs and Crime (CCJ 4642) 3 credits

This course examines the dynamics of the international traffic in illicit drugs and presents an overview of the major issues of drug control. It also provides students with an understanding of the various organized criminal groups that operate in the United States and that play a major role in the illicit drug market.

White Collar Crime (CCJ 4644) 3 credits

This course examines the definitions of white collar crime, as well as the extent and costs of this behavior. The majority of the class centers on the examination of different types of white collar crime, with an emphasis on corporate crime. Case studies are used to illustrate specific instances of white collar crime.

Race, Ethnicity and Criminal Justice (CCJ 4662) 3 credits

Prerequisites: All CCJ courses must be passed with a "C" or better

This course utilizes a variety of theoretical and empirical readings to examine three interconnected domains surrounding the intersection of race, ethnicity, class, crime and criminal justice. It explores racial and ethnic relations in society, racial differences in crime and violence and racial and ethnic disparities in the justice system. The goal of the course is to provide a foundation for critically assessing the often controversial issues surrounding race, ethnicity, crime and criminal justice in society.

Women and Criminal Justice (CCJ 4670) 3 credits

This course will provide an overview of women's involvement in the criminal justice system as offenders, victims and professionals. Considerable attention will be given to the treatment of women in the context of the larger social system. (May be taken for credit in Women, Gender and Sexuality Studies Program.)

Violence in Relationships (CCJ 4679) 3 credits

This course introduces students to the intersection of gender and violence. Students explore the nature of relational violence, its historical roots and its manifestation on modern social life and institutions in relation to physical, emotional and sexual abuse. Additionally, the plight of battered women, the reasoning for staying with their abusers and their attempts to find safety are analyzed.

Human Trafficking: A Global Social Justice Issue (CCJ 4694) 3 credits

This course is an examination of modern day slavery, or human trafficking. In this course students learn about the types of human trafficking, who the offenders and victims are, the trauma experienced by victims, the national and global scope of the problem and the role that governments, the criminal justice system, media and culture play in this issue.

Violence Against Women (CCJ 4697) 3 credits

This course serves as an introduction to violence against women by drawing on mundane everyday life in a patriarchal system. There already exists an overview of violence against women in terms of dating violence and rape during times of war and domestic violence. Specifically, the course explores the relationships among women, patriarchy, pop culture and politics to discover the link to everyday oppression, violence against women, and the core root of the violence and harm as well as its perpetuation.
